Re: REVIEW AND DISCUSSION OF COMPENSATION AND CLASSIFICATION STUDY

Background: The current salary plan was created in 2007 by Personnel Systems and Services, a company that provides Human Resources and Management Consulting. The plan was subsequently adopted by the Board on October 5, 2007. The pay plan was developed through a job classification and analysis, an evaluation of internal equity, and a market survey and analysis. Since its adoption, nearly six years will have transpired and the compensation rates have not been adjusted nor has a market survey and analysis been conducted to ascertain the market competitiveness of the NCRTD’s compensation rates.

The Board approved and authorized the Executive Director to retain the services of a consulting firm to undertake an update of the existing Compensation and Classification plan and District practices. The firm of Personnel Systems and Services was selected after a competitive RFP process was conducted in January 2013. The results of the study are attached hereto. The consulting firm will be present to discuss and review the results with Finance Subcommittee.

The fiscal year 2014 included a 3.5% increase in compensation costs and pay indexed benefit costs but did not include any funds for implementation of any recommendations contained in this study that might be adopted by the Board, since the results were not fully known at the time of budget development.

A closed session has been requested to discuss the data and information(to be made available in the closed session) related to positions covered by the Collective Bargaining Agreement (CBA), since the Union has given notice for negotiations related to the wage reopener in the current CBA.
Recommendation: It is suggested that the Finance Subcommittee discuss the study recommendations and provide an endorsement for Board consideration. Options for implementation will be provided to the Subcommittee at the meeting.

Attachments:

Mr. Anthony J. Mortillaro
Executive Director
1327 Riverside Drive
Española, NM 87532

Dear Mr. Mortillaro:

It is with pleasure that I present you with the final report of your classification and compensation study. This completes the major phases of the original scope of consulting services contracted, which includes: job analysis, job classification and labor market analysis with formal pay plan recommendations and review of various equity issues.

I would like to thank you and your staff for your friendly cooperation and patience. The quality of this project is a reflection of your and the district’s leadership as well as your commitment to management excellence and progress.

This project provides a complete compensation and classification management system. Because of organizational dynamics, and because the nature of human resource management demands change; constant attention to the use of these new tools by those who oversee and those who administer it will be essential to ensure its continued effectiveness. A key feature in the options for your new system is the “value based” internal equity methodology found within the pages of this report.

If there is anything more I can do to be of assistance, please give me a call.

I look forward to a lasting relationship.

Sincerely,

Mike Swallow
President, Personnel Systems & Services

PROJECT NARRATIVE

Introduction

Pursuant to the approval given by the Executive Director and the governing Board, Personnel Systems & Services was contracted to address specific needs which included: 1) Develop and recommend a methodology for determining job values and maintaining internal equity between District jobs, 2) Conduct a labor market survey to determine the current pay practice relationship of the district among selected employers; and 3) Develop and recommend a current and competitive NCRTD pay plan.

Organization Charts

An illustration of current reporting relationships and proposed job titles for each job classification

Policies & Procedures

This section of the report contains a model policy for compensation management, which includes methodology for pay progression through a pay plan and a program for implementing incentive and performance based recognition.

Job Descriptions

A comprehensive job analysis process was utilized which included the employee's contribution as subject matter experts. Each employee was asked to complete a multi-page job description questionnaire identifying various aspects of the job, including: a list of essential function, required knowledge skills and abilities, reporting relationships, decision making functions, supervisory responsibilities and work environment. Upon completion, the employee's supervisor reviewed and offered additional observations for each job. The completed questionnaires were delivered to the consultant for review in anticipation of onsite "desk" or job audits. The onsite job audits were scheduled and conducted for all employees. Jobs with multiple incumbents were represented by one or more employees currently occupying those positions. Upon completion of the job audits the consultant wrote or updated job descriptions for review and approval by management. These documents then became to "control files" for assessing the internal relations of jobs for pay determination as described below.

Job Classification & Job Analysis

This section contains the results of the internal equity evaluation. The instruments used in the process are contained here and are for the review of the NCRTD management, Board members, and all personnel. Each position within the District has been valued using the customized evaluation tool based upon the results of the "work values" survey conducted at the beginning of the study. Each employee was provided with a one-page survey where on they were asked to value or rank various factors for "importance" in setting the worth of their jobs. The average ranking of importance, with "1" being highest, for the work values are: Job Knowledge- 1.28, Responsibility- 1.79, Difficulty- 2.79 and Work Environment - 3.03. Each of these primary values was divided into sub-elements, which were also ranked (see work value summary sheet at the end of this narrative). These rank order preferences were incorporated into the design of the point system against which all positions were valued. If questions occur as to why certain jobs are valued (assigned a pay grade) at one level and others at different levels, the explanation can be discovered in these materials. This process produced a "site validated" internal equity, or job classification system.
Job Evaluation & Internal Equity

Using the instrument developed based upon the results of the work values survey, each position was evaluated and internal relationships numerically determined. There was a strong correlation coefficient derived for the market pay line indicating that the market agreed with the pay grade assignments that resulted from the job evaluation process. The correlation coefficients for the regression lines representing market starting rates was R=.73. The correlation for the pay line representing the District’s current pay practices was R=.905. This part of the analysis verified the stability and consistency with regard to internal pay relationships at the NCRTD and the market agreed with those relationships over 70% of the time.

Salary Information & Market Comparability

The salary data utilized in this market analysis was obtained from the MML "Technology Net Compensation Survey System" and direct solicitation from targeted public sector employers, including school districts. From within the established database NCRTD management identified a cross section of localities within the state with which to compare. The results of this survey were aggregated for analytical purposes and are reported under the Excel file tab labeled “Wage & Salary Information” pages 1 thru 4.

Accompanying the reported survey data is a chart illustrating the comparison of pay practices between the NCRTD and the survey group and appears in the Excel file under the tab labeled “Minimum Rate Comparison” page 6. The statistical method for deriving this comparison was regression analysis which basically returns the picture of comparing the proposed internal equity value for the jobs with the reported starting pay rates for those same jobs. Notice that the job value ratings are not converted to a pay grade. This “no pay grade” approach allows each job to stand alone based upon the market data.

The result of this regression analysis is a recommended salary schedule, which represents market parity and can be found in the “Wage and Salary Information” section of the binder, page 12. The recommended range for each grade was set according to the market regression rate and increases gradually from the lowest valued job to the highest. Notice that the range spread, the distance from the minimum to the maximum varies. It is recommended that slightly wider ranges be utilized for executive and professional jobs which are typically filled by long-term career oriented employees.

In terms of pay progression management, many organizations target a certain pay rate on their pay plan as a control rate and attempt to manage performance to allow employees to achieve between 90% to 105% of that value within some time frame (four to five years for example), called a Compa-ratio. Compa-ratio refers to the percentage which employee actual pay represents the target or control rate (often the midpoint of the pay range). Pay increases beyond the control rate/midpoint then become contingent upon exemplary performance, longevity and other specific criteria. The midpoint is generally considered as market competitive. When considering implementation options, the NCRTD may want to consider employee compa-ratios when making placement on a new pay plan. Employees who have been performing within the same job classification for three to five years should possess job competencies sufficient to justify pay which is 90%-105% of midpoint, assuming that performance is at least standard. Compa-Ratios are illustrated in the Excel file titled “Least Cost Implementation”, pages 13 and 14.

As the NCRTD considers a strategy for implementation it will come down to two primary factors; 1- willingness to pay and 2- ability to pay. These two issues will be defined in relation to the market information of this study. There are four basic postures to consider when establishing the organizations pay objectives: 1- trendsetter, 2- competitive, 3-parity, and 4- comparable. To be competitive suggests a pay objective above average or parity. Comparability can still be argued when paying below parity if other aspects of the employment and compensation program (NCRTD paid benefits) strengthen the employee and management perception of “fairness”.

Also included in the implementation spreadsheet is the proposed placement of all District employees on the proposed pay plan. The strategy is accomplished by placing each employee at a rate on the recommended pay range that is at least equal to his or her current rate of pay. The formula for making these assignments was created by NCRTD management. Only employees whose current rate falls below the recommended starting rate are identified for increases. At this point it becomes a management option to factor back into the implementation strategy a method for recognizing performance, time in service, job knowledge and other pertinent aspects of the employee work history.

Compensation Comparability Observation & Consideration

As mentioned above, total compensation comparability should be a consideration in the final decision-making process. As employees shop their skills in the market place they naturally assess their total marketability and the prevailing rate, total compensation package. The pension contribution in the New Mexico public sector compensation landscape is very high profile. When looking at the average employer paid contribution we find the average value of 12.78% (see page 15 under the "Wage & Salary Information" tab). In the pension contribution picture, based upon this survey sample group, the NCRTD is currently 3.63% behind your peers.

This total compensation picture will be further influenced by the scheduled 15% increase in the cost of medical and related insurance. Though the NCRTD is competitive in the sharing of those costs the employee's disposable income will be shrinking proportionally.

It is recommended that consideration be given to the mitigation of disparity in the total compensation picture. A couple of options may be: 1) increase the NCRTD's employer contribution to the pension program by picking up an additional amount of the employees share; 2) engage a complimentary or supplemental retirement plan under another IRS approved structure, such as 457 plans, 401Ks, etc. and offer the approved matching rates; 3) Explore more aggressive alternatives in the medical insurance arena, including Health Savings Accounts, and the various "employer loads" with the elevated percentage in the employer paid premiums.

CONCLUSION

The objectives of the study have been twofold: 1- to create an internal equity program based upon job values determined by the NCRTD to be most effective in documenting the worth of jobs; and 2- determine the level of competitiveness achieved by NCRTD proposed compensation practices relative to wage/salary rates and ranges.

Conclusion #1: As noted earlier there was a strong correlation between the recommended pay levels and market pay practices. The new internal equity or classification system has been effectively updated.

Section III of the job value survey administered at the beginning of the study requested participating employees to state their perceptions with regard to four equity situations. 34 employees responded. 62.4% of the respondents indicated that they felt there was an inequity between their current pay and the value of the job (a classification issue). In comparison to the survey participants, this perception was generally not true, particularly with regard to the rank and file jobs. It was true to the extent that the market average reported starting rates for jobs in the higher job classifications are generally higher than the District's jobs. 64.7% indicated that they perceived an inequity between their pay and the pay of others performing essentially the same type of work within the District. Because there is a strong correlation between the market and the District with regard to equity relationships already in place, these perceptions are likely to be based upon consistency or inconsistencies in pay progression practices as may be influenced by policy related to longevity, performance, etc. 82.4% of the respondents indicated that they felt under paid when considering the amount of work they perform. The issue is purely performance and workload related; but could also be indicative of a staffing issue or workload distribution. 91.2% believed that the pay provided by the NCRTD was behind the market practice. This perception was not validated in relation to the pay range practices. The District's pay ranges lead the market where the job "equity value" is 13.31 or lower (see highlighted values on page 5- Wage & Salary Information). See also the job by job comparison on the chart, pages 6, 7 and 8 and the trailing position for the jobs valued above 13.31.

Conclusion #2: Based upon the results of the labor market survey; the overall District current pay rates are competitive when compared to the survey group, as noted above. Where differences exist between the District and the survey group the situation could be attributed to a variety of factors, i.e. (1) tenure of current employees, (2) fiscal health of the organization, (3) utilization and application of a specific pay progression philosophy and methodology, (4) geographic issues impacting cost-of-living and (5) the relative differences in organization size and resources.

IMPLEMENTATION

This is an ideal time to distinguish between the level of performance and competency of workers without having to utilize promotion processes. Criteria for placement in the higher graded levels of a classification series (i.e. Transit Driver I, II, III/Lead) should be related to position minimum qualifications, knowledge, skills and abilities of the worker and the perceived level of competence of the employees. The least-cost method of placing employees within the range of the new pay grade is achieved simply by identifying whether or not their current pay falls within the assigned pay range. Employees whose pay falls below the minimum of assigned pay grades are recommended for an adjustment to the minimum. This approach does not preserve pay relationships between employees which have occurred due to longevity, performance or any previously used advancement or recognition criteria.

If the NCRTD desires to initiate a program that targets a specific compa-ratio, this would be a good time to begin. You may want to consider additional adjustments for employees who are considered full performance or fully competent workers and whose pay falls below the midpoint of the newly assigned pay grade, compa-ratios less than 1.00.

BASIS OF SOUND PAY PROGRAMS

In connection with the results of this study and as the District evaluates the impact of change upon the existing or proposed budgets; your effort to maintain an effective compensation program will be influenced by your philosophy related to some or all of the following (converted to policy):

1. Size and type of business: The ability to pay certain rates, based upon revenues and financial resources.

2. Organizational Philosophy: The willingness to pay certain rates and attitudes about ranking among other employers within a selected labor market or among survey participants.

3. Nature and Diversity of Work: The degree of specialization, work variety, and technology (an element of the job classification methodology).

4. Regional Economics: The prevailing rates of pay and the rates of inflation.

5. Availability of Labor Supply: The competition for certain types of jobs resulting from an abundance or shortage of certain skills and abilities within the labor market.

6. Value of Work Contribution: The worth of a particular job to the organization (the overall value determined through classification methodology).

7. Organization of Labor: The forced inflation of certain pay rates. The degree of recognition provided to unions or associations.

8. Pay Supplements: The total compensation comparability afforded through various incentives and discretionary benefits.

9. Reputation of the Organization: The competitiveness of pay and social recognition as high- or low-paying.

10. Pay Progression Policy:
    - The learning curve impact associated with certain types of jobs.
    - Pay range uniformity vs. diversity (pay schedule design).
• Length of Service.
• Performance based increases.
• Pay for knowledge or level of competency.
• The use of "control rates" within the pay ranges.

11. Bonus and Incentive Plans:
   • The use of "non-scheduled" recognition.
   • The use of non-monetary rewards.

12. Contributory Value:
    • The perceived value of the individual to the organization. This perceived value is based upon a number of observable and measurable criteria normally associated with a formal performance management program consisting of individual performance plans, performance monitoring and performance evaluations. This formal approach justifies and documents the decisions which are made with regard to pay progression and job promotions.

MODEL POLICY
COMPENSATION MANAGEMENT

A. POLICY: Compensation for District employees shall be equitable and competitive with the market and in accord with the District's ability to pay. The compensation plan shall be prepared by the Executive Director and adopted by resolution of the Board of Directors.

B. GENERAL WAGE/SALARY ADJUSTMENTS: It is the intent of the District to consider prevailing practices related to cost of living and market trends in establishing wages and salaries which constitute the formal pay schedule. On all occasions the amount of the rate changes will ultimately be based upon the anticipated affect(s) upon the District budget. The Executive Director, based upon Board of Director's approval, will make final determination of any changes to the salary scale. Where general, across-the-board adjustments are approved, the change will be effective on a date determined and approved by the Board of Directors. General adjustments are separate and distinct from performance recognition increases. General adjustments may affect the pay scale only, thus shifting the pay of all employees in relation to the midpoint.

C. COST-OF-LIVING VS. MARKET: Adjustments to the salary schedule may be determined periodically through analysis of market trends in comparison to cost-of-living. This may be done once per year and the District may utilize either market survey results or cost-of-living index data (federal) or a combination of both. All employees, regardless of employment status, except those being red circled (frozen), shall receive the benefits of such general COLA adjustments to the pay plan unless such employees are represented by a Union and such adjustments if any are governed by a Collective Bargaining Agreement.

In determining the total compensation value of the position, benefits must be considered. Base salary plus cost of benefits constitutes total compensation. In comparing benefit packages provided in the labor market, the District may evaluate both level and cost of benefits or other factors as deemed appropriate.

D. HOURLY RATES: Temporary fulltime and all part-time, seasonal and emergency employees shall be paid at an hourly rate no higher than that which is established for the position classification and may be paid at a lesser rate as recommended by the Executive Director.

E. ADMINISTRATION OF THE COMPENSATION PLAN:

The approved Compensation Plan shall constitute the official schedule of salaries for all classifications in the District to which such Compensation Plan is applicable. The rates of pay for all persons in the District shall be approved by the Executive Director and no salaries shall be approved unless they conform to the approved Compensation Plan.
F. INITIAL APPOINTMENT:

No employee in the District shall be paid a salary less than the minimum nor greater than the maximum of the salary range for the classification as fixed by the Compensation Plan unless otherwise provided for in the Rules or approved by the Executive Director.

The entrance rate payable to any employee upon appointment to a position in the District shall be the minimum rate in any applicable salary range, unless a higher rate, in-grade hire, is authorized by the Executive Director because of the candidate’s exceptional qualifications, difficulty in recruitment, or other valid reason.

G. PAY PROGRESSION: Progression within the salary and wage scale shall be based upon the approval of the Executive Director. In approving recommendations for pay progression, the Executive Director shall consider compliance with District policies and procedures, performance, level of competence and job knowledge.

H. PERFORMANCE BASED INCREASES:

1) Performance increases shall not be granted on an automatic basis but shall be granted upon the demonstrated quality of performance and based on the availability of funding.

2) Exempt, classified regular, and limited term employees who are considered to be deserving as evidenced by average or above job performance, may be granted a performance increase based on a formula approved by the Board, as may be determined periodically within the limits of the salary range after one (1) year from the date of:
   i. Rehire or re-employment
   ii. Initial employment
   iii. The last performance increase; or
   iv. Promotion.

3) Any period of leave without pay in excess of thirty (30) days shall not be credited as continuous service toward eligibility for a performance increase.

4) Service in emergency or limited term, or temporary status, when followed without a break in service by probationary appointment to the same classification, will be credited toward eligibility for a performance increase.

5) The Executive Director may authorize a salary increase to any rate in the salary range as an incentive for the emergency retention of exempt, classified regular and limited term employees who are offered employment outside of the District to retain them in their current positions. The following will be required:
   a) Documented proof of outside job offer.
b) Increase, computed as a percent of the employee's salary, may be granted as a lump sum at the end of a service period, in installments over the course of service period but never to be provided in advance.

c) Before receiving an emergency retention, an employee must sign a written agreement to complete a specified period of service with the District.

I. RED CIRCLE RATE: This provision refers to the rate of pay for an employee whose pay falls above the current maximum salary for the pay grade to which assigned, reclassified or transferred. Such employee(s) shall be placed on a salary freeze for a period not to exceed two (2) years and shall not be eligible for any general adjustment (COLA) given during the same period of time. During the two-year period, if the employee’s rate of pay falls back within the assigned pay range, the freeze shall be lifted. If at the end of two years, the employee's pay rate still falls above the maximum of the pay range, that employee's pay rate shall be reduced to the maximum of the assigned position.

J. SALARY DECREASES:

1. When it becomes necessary to demote an employee for their inability or unwillingness to perform the assigned duties and essential functions of their position; that employee may also suffer a loss of pay. The amount of the pay reduction shall be determined on a case-by-case basis, but never below the newly assigned salary range.

   a) Salaries of all employees may be decreased uniformly and equitably for budgetary reasons upon the recommendation of the Executive Director and approval of the Board.

   b) Affected employees shall be given at least twenty-eight (28) days’ notice.

   c) In no case shall a salary be reduced below the minimum rate in the salary range.

   d) Salary decreases may be made to classes of employees, when deemed necessary, in the following order:

      i. Emergency.

      ii. Temporary.

      iii. Limited Term.

      iv. Probationary.

      v. Limited Term.

      vi. Exempt.

      vii. Classified Regular.
2. Classification Reduction.

   a) An employee may, as the result of reorganization or when deemed in the best interest by his or her supervisor, receive a reduction from their current classification to a lower classification with no reduction in salary.

   b) The salary of an employee who voluntarily takes a classification reduction will be reduced but never below the newly assigned salary range.

K. OTHER SALARY ADJUSTMENTS:

1. When a promotion occurs, the appropriate pay rate upon promotion is determined in accordance with the classification level of the new classification.

   a) Promotions within the same classification level will result in a base pay rate increase to the minimum pay step of the new range, or up to a 5% increase if the employee's current pay rate exceeds the minimum of the new classification. The maximum pay range shall not be exceeded; the balance of the award must be taken in cash if the full amount exceeds the maximum pay range.

   b) Promotions from any lower level classification to any higher level classification will result in a base pay rate increase to the minimum pay step of the new range, or up to a 10% increase if the employee's current pay rate exceeds the minimum of the new classification. The maximum pay range shall not be exceeded; the balance of the award must be taken in cash if the full amount exceeds the maximum pay range.

   c) A higher or lower base pay rate may be authorized upon promotion by the Executive Director because of salary compaction; experience and qualifications; correction of salary inequities; or other valid reasons.

2. The salary of an employee who is laterally transferred to a comparable position shall remain the same unless the Executive Director finds cause for a salary increase due to any change in employment conditions.

3. The salary of an employee who is re-employed after being called to military active duty in accordance with the provisions of such policy shall be at a rate equal to what the employee would have attained had the employee not been called to active duty.

L. TERMINATION PAY: When employees terminate, they shall be required to return all equipment and to clear all financial obligations involving their employment with the District prior to receiving their final paycheck. Any such obligation not cleared may be itemized and deducted from their final paycheck, consistent with IRS guidelines and/or state statute. Final paycheck, including compensation for all uncompensated hours worked, unused annual leave and overtime will be issued on the next regularly scheduled pay period following termination. If the Executive Director receives a written request for final payment, the final payment shall be issued within 24 hours from the date terminated.
The Executive Director may submit to finance/payroll the amount of termination pay to which the employee is entitled.

M. PAY ADVANCEMENT: The District will not make pay advances to employees.
A View of the Morale Cycle

Considerable

High/Positive Morale
Employees have high expectations and believe that all or most aspects of employment are equitable and fair. Management and supervisors are viewed as partners to progress and are consistent in the execution of programs and the application of rules and policies. Political "combat" and "power struggles" do not exist to inhibit the common good and progress of the organization.

   (Employee)
What Is A Classification Plan?

A position classification plan is an orderly grouping of jobs based upon their difficulty, specific duties, level of responsibility, qualifications and other "work value" criteria required to assume the position.

In order to understand the basis for a classification plan, some of the terms and concepts used must be defined. For example, the basic building block of the entire system is the position. A position is a "group of current duties and responsibilities assigned by authority, which requires the employment of one person."

In classification we group similar positions into what is know as a class. A class is "group of positions which are sufficiently similar in duties and responsibilities so that each position in the group can: 1- be given an appropriate job title; 2- require the same level of education and experience; 3- require the same skills and abilities; and 4- have the same salary range apply to all positions with "equity". No one factor determines which class a position will be placed in.

FACTORS TO BE CONSIDERED WHEN CLASSIFYING POSITIONS

1. Do not confuse the position with the employee, the individual.

2. Distinguish between the qualifications required for the position and those of the employee(s) who presently occupy it. They may or may not be the same.

3. Since the employee's performance or qualifications are not being classified, it makes no difference in the "value" of the position how well or how poorly the incumbent performs the job.

Remember that the classification plan deals with the types of work as described in job descriptions and is not an attempt to evaluate departments or employees. The study deals only with what employees are officially assigned. Such things as individual competence, efficiency, capability, experience, or length of service are not considered classification factors. The position classification process deals with jobs, not individuals.

USE OF THIS PLAN

A position classification plan is the keystone of an effective personnel system, and it benefits both employer and employee. Employees can refer to it for promotion potential in their occupation and can learn what additional training and experience they will need to perform at higher level positions. Employees can know that job requirements have been analyzed properly and they will be paid at the same salary range as other employees performing similar work.
By using the plan, supervisors and department heads can determine the proper classification for new or additional positions. Executives and Boards can use it for setting equitable compensation for various positions. They can also use it for budget development.

Fundamentally, a classification plan provides a structure for dealing with personnel matters and permits the matching of pay policy with duties, responsibilities, and other requirements rather than other subjective factors.

APPLICATION OF THE "LEAD WORKER" CONCEPT

In addition to the basic classification plan, it is recommended that the concept of "lead worker" be understood to recognize and compensate for moderate distinctions in work situations that do not warrant the creation of separate classes.

The "lead worker" concept is intended for classifications which are primarily non-supervisory in nature but in which one of the positions in the class has been delegated limited supervisory duty. These duties might include: distributing work assignments, maintaining a balanced work load among a group, reviewing completed work, keeping records of work production and attendance or employees in the same or comparable classes, and assuming the duties of a superior for short periods of time. These duties by themselves normally do not justify allocation to or creation of a separate class.

An employee designated as "lead worker" may receive additional compensation to their base pay (approximately 3-5%) for the duration of the lead worker assignment.
This approach is not only economical but provides for selection and assignment of capable employees without going through formal reclassification. At the completion of their lead worker assignment, employees should revert to their original base pay rate.

Caution should be exercised to avoid using the lead worker concept as a means of financially rewarding senior workers.

Compensation Philosophy

In the ongoing debate over which approach to take in the development of organizational compensation objectives and strategy, there are two dominate positions. One is to be a "market driven" or "market based" system, where the prevailing practice of a defined market is used to establish the effective pay rate for all jobs in the organization. The second is to be a "value" or "equity based" system where job classifications are established using some internal equity methodology, then combined with regression analysis to create pay ranges.

Initially the most appealing is classification. These systems promote the perception of equity, fairness and consistency. While most organizations which subscribe to an "equity based" system buy an off-the-shelf program, such as Hay, Decision Band, or some other approach, the values built into these programs may or may not be consistent with those of the organization. It is the opinion of Personnel Systems that in order to have the most reliable, effective and defensible internal equity/classification system, the "worth of work" values of your organization need to be identified and structured into the classification instrument.

The classification approach, no matter how effectively developed and designed, still has administrative headaches. Such as those created by supply and demand issues in the market. You will identify this problem by "market sensitive" positions. Though valued properly based upon your classification system, the assigned pay ranges for these jobs are non-competitive or inadequate. These market conditions may be temporary or may persist over several years.

When frustrations with market sensitive positions persist some managers tend to want to abandon the internal equity method in order to better serve the market sensitive master. This establishes the notion that pure market pricing is the competitive reality. The reality of the situation comes into play when problem indicators surface, such as attrition rates on the rise. However, it is questionable that base pay alone, unless significantly greater, would entice employees to want to change employment. Another issue derived from the market centers around the history of pay practices for gender dominated jobs, the practices which spawned the "comparable worth" debates of the 1980's. Though much ground has been gained in overcoming the perceptions of inequality, to formalize a pay system based solely upon prevailing market job pricing will tend to preserve bias and various forms of compensation discrimination. The greatest weakness in the pure market approach lies in the ability, or inability, to collect quality market data on 100% of your jobs, which forces the use of some internal comparison method.

So what is the conclusion? The conclusion is, that to subscribe to any approach to the total exclusion of the other ultimately results in incongruity. The successful compensation system is eclectic and based upon the integration of the market based approach with a classification system.

Background and reference checks. Since organizations that provide information for background and reference checks run the risk of being sued for defamation, applicants should be required to sign authorizations for these checks to be performed. These authorizations usually include a statement that the applicant waives any action against the prospective and former employers based on statements made during the check.

Suggestions regarding Notices, authorizations, and waivers.

1- If planning to include a credit check as part of a background or reference check first notify the applicant in writing and obtain the applicant's written authorization. The notice with signature authorization must be provided on a stand-alone form, separate from the application form.

2- If not already obtained on a formal application, provide the applicant with a written notice informing them that a criminal check may be performed and that a criminal record is not an automatic ban to employment.

3- Include on the notice a statement that the workplace is smoke-free and drug-free and that the applicant agrees to comply with all related rules if actually hired.

4- If the company requires a pre-employment drug test or post-offer physical examination, include this information in the notice, along with a line for applicant to consent to these procedures.

Interview Questions: The purpose of an interview is to determine whether an applicant has the prerequisite skills, qualifications, and experience necessary to perform the job. In addition, the interviewer tries to decide if the candidate is compatible with the working environment, the organization's culture, and potential coworkers.

Questions, therefore, should be open-ended and require more than a simple "yes" or "no" answer. In addition, interviewers should ask applicants to give examples of actual work experiences that demonstrate their strengths and weaknesses. The candidate's responses can provide insight into organizational ability, personality, judgment, and ability to adapt to the company's working environment. Many employers involve potential coworkers in the interview process to help build a consensus within the department as to the applicant's overall skills, abilities, and compatibility.

In general, questions and notes should be limited to such job-related areas as education, experience, and ability to perform the job. Also, statements by interviewers should avoid misstating or exaggerating the job's benefits.

Managing an Interview.

1. Have a set agenda in mind.
2. Spend the first minute or two of an interview telling the applicant how it will be conducted.
3. For example, the interviewer should let the applicant know the approximate length of the interview, whether it will be tape-recorded or notes will be taken, and how many people will be involved in the process.
4. Establish positive rapport with the applicant to encourage candid conversation.
5. Open-ended questions are more effective at eliciting information than questions that are designed to give specific answers.
6. Use "behavioral interviewing" where applicants are asked to describe how they have dealt with a specific situation in the past. For example, a candidate may be asked to describe a specific incidence in which he had to handle an irate customer.
7. At the end of the interview, let the applicant know what to expect with regard to another interview and when the company intends to fill the position.
Legal considerations for interview questions. With the exception of the Americans with Disabilities Act ("ADA") (which prohibits all pre-employment medical inquiries), no federal law specifically prohibits employers from asking questions about an applicant's protected class membership. However, most courts will assume that all questions are asked for a purpose and that selection or hiring decisions will be made on the basis of the answers. Thus, if an interviewer asks about an applicant's age or national origin, it is assumed that he intends to base the employment decision on that information. Even the simple asking of the question may be used as evidence against an employer in a discrimination claim.

To eliminate discriminatory questions, the EEOC recommends reviewing each question to determine whether:

1. the answer will have a disparate effect by screening out minorities or members of one sex, and

2. the information sought is really needed to judge the applicant's competence for the job. Questions that reveal an applicant's membership in a federal or state protected class should not be used. The EEOC will allow a question that is likely to have a disparate effect only when a "business necessity" can be shown. Three criteria must be met to claim a business necessity: (a) the information must be necessary to the safe and efficient operation of the business; (b) the question must effectively serve its intended purpose; and (c) there must be no alternative that would serve the same purpose with less discriminatory impact.

3. all questions should relate to the candidate's ability to perform the job. Thus, employers should focus on past experience, relevant education, prior employment, and the job duties of the particular position. In addition, make sure that questions do not have the effect of "screening out" protected class members. For example, asking "Who is the primary caregiver for your children?" could be interpreted as screening out female candidates.

Race. Questions about an applicant's race or ethnic origin should be excluded. Do not ask for information about the social organizations or clubs to which the applicant belongs.

National origin. Do not try to determine whether a person is from another country by asking applicants to reveal their national origin or citizenship (except to demonstrate eligibility to work in the United States). Questions regarding the birthplace of an applicant's spouse or parents should be avoided; likewise, do not ask for a maiden name or ask about the origin of the applicant's name, such as whether it is Chinese. In addition, do not request an applicant's social security number; wait until after an offer is made if the number is needed for a background check or payroll purposes. Unless English-language proficiency is a bona fide job requirement, do not rate a candidate on this skill.

Disability. Direct inquiries about medical conditions or disabilities should not be asked, although all applicants may be asked about their ability to perform the functions of the job. To comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act, which specifically prohibits employers from asking any question that may elicit information about a disability, do not ask questions about specific diseases; number of days the applicant was sick in the previous year (but asking the number of "absences" in the previous year is allowed); mental health problems and history; past addiction to drugs or extent of illegal drug use (current illegal use may be questioned); and prescription drug use. Questions about job-related injuries and workers' compensation claims should also be excluded. Employers may ask if an applicant needs a reasonable accommodation in the preemployment process, such as assistance completing the application. However, the employer generally may not ask if the applicant needs a reasonable accommodation to perform the job, except in limited circumstances.

Gender. Employers should not ask about a person's gender; marital status; spouse's name, maiden name, or preference for "Miss" or "Mrs."; or pregnancy, family plans, number and ages of children, or child care arrangements. Employers can, however, ask if an applicant has ever been known by another name to perform accurate background checks.

Age. Employers should not request a date of birth (but the applicant may be asked if he is of legal age to work) or even age-related information such as the dates of primary or secondary school attendance (unless educational degrees are necessary for the job and the employer intends to verify the degree) to prevent any inference of age discrimination.
Religion. Employers should not inquire about religious holidays observed but may ask about the ability to work on weekends or holidays if availability is job-related. Applicants whose religious observance conflicts with work schedules may have to be offered an accommodation.

Military status. While employers may ask about job-related military experience or training, they may not inquire about a candidate’s military status or type of military discharge.

 Arrest or criminal record. Asking about a candidate’s arrest record is expressly prohibited under many state laws and can expose the employer to claims of disparate impact based on race. However, convictions may be investigated for relevance to the job.

Financial status. Employers should not ask about a candidate’s financial status (unless job-related), past pay garnishments, or bankruptcy, but may perform credit checks under Fair Credit Reporting Act guidelines.

Related to off-duty activities. Interviewers should usually eliminate questions about smoking or other legal, but unhealthful or dangerous, activities that the applicant may engage in off-duty. More than half of the states protect smokers against employment discrimination based on smoking off-duty, and a growing number prohibit discrimination based on any lawful off-duty activity.

General EEO. Other topics to be excluded from application forms and interviews include prior equal opportunity claims, sexual orientation (if covered by state or local law), and nonprofessional memberships and charities. Employers that are required to maintain affirmative action programs may need to compile data on the number of applicants who are females, minorities, disabled, or Vietnam-era or disabled veterans. This type of information should be solicited on a separate or tear-off sheet and kept in a file separate from the applicant’s general information.

Offer Letter. Some employers prefer to make only verbal job offers because of the possibility that a written offer may be interpreted as a contract of employment. Many employers find, however, that the advantages of an offer letter outweigh this negative possibility. A written letter is reassuring to a prospective employee because it makes the offer more formal, tangible, and professional. Furthermore, having a written record of the deadline for accepting the offer, starting date, starting salary, and other pertinent information, helps prevent misunderstandings about the conditions of employment.

Date of offer. In addition to their practical benefits, offer letters also provide proof that a bona fide offer of employment was made and establish the offer’s date. This record is especially significant relative to the timing of medical inquiries and examinations, background checks, and drug testing. For example, the Americans with Disabilities Act ("ADA") prohibits asking about medical information or conducting medical tests before a conditional offer is made.

Unlike medical testing, background checks and drug testing may be done either before or after making a conditional offer. The company should be aware, however, that performing background checks prior to making a conditional offer can disclose an applicant’s membership in a protected class or reveal other non-job-related information that can be used to support a hiring discrimination claim.

Drug tests are not considered medical examinations under the ADA and, therefore, technically may be performed prior to a conditional offer of employment. As a practical matter, however, medical information that may violate the ADA if collected pre-offer may be needed to ensure the efficiency and accuracy of drug tests. It may be more prudent, therefore, as well as more efficient and economical, to postpone these procedures until a conditional offer has been made. If a job offer is being made contingent upon the results of medical examinations, background checks, or drug tests, this should be clearly stated in the offer letter.

Drafting an offer letter. Here are five simple guidelines for drafting an offer letter that does not create a contract:

1. Do not include any statements creating an expectation that employment is for a specific period of time or that termination will be only for specific reasons. For example, discussing bonuses the employee “will” receive at the end of the year can form the basis that the employee has a contract to work for a specific period. Similarly, references to job security or to specific disciplinary procedures can be interpreted to mean the employee can only be terminated in limited circumstances.

2. Do not describe the employee’s pay only on the basis of an annual rate. Use references to a weekly, biweekly, or monthly rate and also include the phrase “equivalent to $X on an annual basis.”
3. Use phrases such as "generally" and "typically" when referring to terms and conditions of employment, such as benefits and company policies. These generalized descriptions are less likely to be misinterpreted as binding promises.

4. Include a specific at-will statement so the employee understands that either party may terminate the relationship at any time.

5. As a final precaution, have legal counsel review the standard wording used in offer letters for any statements that may jeopardize the at-will employment relationship.

Reference Checking: Reference checking can eliminate undesirable applicants, identify the best candidate, reduce turnover and training costs, and even prevent liability for negligent hiring. Many employers also perform other types of background checks on candidates, including criminal checks, consumer credit checks, driving record checks, and verification of educational background.

Generally, reference checks should be made before the offer of employment is extended so that the employer has as much information about a candidate as possible. In the interest of time, however, some employers make offers contingent on the reference check. Here are five tips for conducting legal, effective reference checks:

1. Insist that every applicant sign a release. Never check references before obtaining the candidate's written permission to do so. Consent is a strong defense to defamation and other tort (wrongful act) claims an applicant may bring, and it is also generally required under the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) before an employer can use a third party to conduct checks. To protect further against applicant lawsuits, the consent form also should include language that releases the organization and its agents, as well as former employers and reference givers, from any legal liability that may result from the checks.

2. Get job-related information from applicants. Before conducting reference checks, request that applicants provide background documentation such as old pay stubs, business cards, job descriptions, and performance appraisals. These items can be used to verify information provided in resumes, application forms, and interviews and can help identify specific issues to follow up on in reference inquiries.

3. Minimize reference resistance. Expect reference sources to be guarded, or even defensive, since so many organizations try to limit potential legal exposure by releasing only the "name, rank and serial number" of former employees. To facilitate the process, fax or mail the signed consent and release to the reference giver. When calling references, the interviewer can help break the ice by briefly sharing information about themselves, the organization, and the job the candidate has applied for. Some employers even ask an applicant to contact referrers first to help ensure that they can actually get through to them.

4. Keep questions pertinent. To help obtain relevant and consistent information on applicants, develop a reference check form with a list of standard questions and require it to be used for all checks. At a minimum, the form should cover the basics including dates of employment, positions held, and pay rates. In addition, it should contain open-ended questions about skills, qualifications, strengths, weaknesses, work habits, and suitability for the position. The form also should include specific questions about performance issues and disciplinary actions, eligibility for rehire, and reasons for leaving.

5. Document responses, even if limited ones. Keep an accurate written record of all your reference discussions to support your hiring decisions and to help protect against negligent hiring, defamation, and other legal claims. And, if the reference giver refuses to provide any information, document the request and the lack of cooperation.

Writing Job Descriptions
Class Specifications
Introduction

The information that follows is designed to serve as a summary of the philosophy and concepts used in the creation of job descriptions or class specifications for a job classification system. It is intended to provide the user with an overview of the techniques for preparing a class or job description.

Job description/Class Specification and Series

A class or job description is a written statement of the characteristic duties, responsibilities, and qualification requirements that distinguish a given position or group of positions from other classes. Two or more classes which are similar in the nature of work performed but differ in level of responsibility and degree of difficulty, constitute a series (e.g. Clerk I, II, and III). Care should be taken to assure consistency among the specifications within a series; particularly, with regard to supervision received, difficulty and complexity of duties, responsibilities and required minimum qualifications.

The above outline shall be further described on the pages which follow and shall be referenced according to the numeric designation pointed to at the left.
The job or class Title should be brief, descriptive and consistent with other titles within the classification plan. Roman numerals should be used, where possible, to designate levels within a series; i.e., Clerk I, Clerk II, Clerk III, with the numeral "I" designating the lowest level (except in instances where the lowest level within a series is titled “Trainee”).

The Section defines a work group, unit or team, and may also represent a classification series.

The Division is a subsection of the department. The title is specific to a functional area of responsibility.

The Department is the largest level within the organization which is titled to specifically describe the general function(s) performed by its occupational group(s).

The Class Code is assigned arbitrarily depending upon the size of the jurisdiction and the number of descriptions within the classification system. By positioning the code in the upper right hand corner, it may also serve as a page number. Code categories may designate departments or an occupational type, such as administrative, professional, technical, clerical, maintenance, etc.

The Pay Grade is the result of the job analysis and evaluation process. It is the number used to express the equitable relationship which exists between that position and all other positions and classes, based on difficulty and responsibility of work performed. Positions of equal value can be treated alike for pay purposes throughout an organization. For example, grades may range from 1 to 20, 30, 40, etc., with 1 being the lowest pay range of a pay plan.

The Effective Date is generally left blank, to be date stamped upon the material being accepted as final or is implemented. Dating the material will allow for better maintenance of the classification system. When ever any change in content or pay grade occurs, the Date Revised should be inserted or updated.

The General Purpose statement is a capsule description which identifies the class, nature, kind and level of work. The statement should be definitive to differentiate this class from all other classes or to identify similarities. The statement will begin with "Performs...........followed by level and kind of work. When necessary for clarity, the occupational field should be added after kind of work. The general statement, in most instances, should be one or two sentences long and as brief as possible. For "kind of work" there is no absolute set terminology, the kind of work should be defined as briefly as possible by terms similar to the examples listed below to describe the general group of work, followed by the occupational field. The inclusion of the occupational field is useful if it clarifies unusual working conditions hazards or other classification factors not denoted by the level and kind of work. Generally, these terms are not modified unless necessary to distinguish between classes in a series, and the modification should usually be restricted to words such as "light, heavy, routine, advanced, complex." If two or more levels of work are involved, the higher level or the most common level should usually be stated first, e.g. "Performs supervisory and complex maintenance....." or "Performs administrative and professional....."

Occupational Group / Kind of Work

Labor, Craft and Trades: Manual Labor, Maintenance Work, Repair Work, Construction Work, Supervisory, etc.

Clerical, Secretarial, Office Machine, Public Contact: Clerical Work, Secretarial Work, Routine Administrative Support Work, Typing Work, Word Processing, Data Entry & Processing Work, Public Contact Work, etc.

Supervisory & Principal Administrative: These terms define both level and kind of work.
Level of Work: The following terms should be used to express the level of work performed. A class or description may include one or more of these general groupings.

Reporting Relationships is comprised of two separate statements, one defining the type of supervision received and the other, supervision exercised. The Supervision Received statement begins with "Works under......", followed by the type of supervision received and the title or level of the position exercising the supervision. Administrative Superior is a common generic term which may be used. It means an individual who is administratively at a higher level, without defining the class. More specific examples of an administrative superior are Technical Supervisor, First-line supervisor, Lead Worker, Foreman, Board, Commission, Chief Executive Officer. The following terms should be used to indicate the type of supervision received: Immediate Supervision, Close Supervision, General Supervision, General Guidance & Direction, or Broad Policy Guidance & Direction.

Immediate Supervision: This phrase indicates the greatest amount of supervision and control from above, the least personal independence of action, and the least breadth of matters upon which the employee makes decisions. This particular level of supervision is recognized by its specificity and its application to details. The supervisor has not only the responsibility for assignments, flow of work, production, discipline and other management functions, but also the responsibility for proper instructions as to objectives, plans, policies, procedures and office methods, including specific responsibility for matters which are out of the ordinary or unusual when compared to the routine work performed. The employee's assignments, objectives and sequence of detailed steps in the work are prescribed through manuals, policies, directives, etc. Little opportunity is given for the employee to exercise personal initiative, discretion or judgment, or for the assumption of any real responsibility for results alone.

Generally, the employee is held personally responsible for accurate and proper application of steps in a well-recognized technique. If the employee has followed this technique and the instructions, his/her responsibility ends, because the responsibility for results rests with the supervisor. The employee is given no assignments requiring the exercise of experienced judgment except that gained by experience in a well-recognized or well-defined, standard, or conventional routine such as following procedures outlined in manuals or directives.

Close Supervision: The employee under "close supervision" has received exposure to the work of a given classification or position. The employee is familiar with the routine and with the methods or procedures affecting the particular position. It is presumed that the employee will be able to recognize instances which are out of the ordinary and which do not fall within existing instructions. The person is then expected to seek advice and further instructions. Reviews and checks of the employee's work are applied only to an extent sufficient to keep the supervisor aware of progress and to insure that instructions are being followed.

General Supervision: This phrase indicates that the control from above is not a particularized supervision, but a general control, not intimately bearing upon the details of the employee's work. The assignments and objectives are prescribed for the employee, but the person's work methods are seldom supervised, reviewed or controlled while the work is in progress. This is "results oriented" supervision. The employee is expected to plan the sequence of detailed steps by using experienced judgment and discretion within the understood parameters of the position. The person is expected to solve through initiative, most problems of detail that come up in the course of the work. The problems of unusual nature, the employee is expected to revise the procedures and methods to accommodate these conditions. There is substantive and personal responsibility for results, circumscribed by the scope of the assignments.
The principal elements of general supervision in relation to the technical aspects of a position relate to personal accountability for accomplishing prescribed results and objectives, and considerable freedom while the work is in progress.

In those cases where general supervision is found in both management and technical functions, the following indicators are also usually present: considerable freedom from control over sequence of assignments, a fair degree of responsibility for determining what shall be done next and a substantial degree of independence in planning and organizing assigned work activities.

General Guidance & Direction: This phrase indicates a general and somewhat removed control which manifests itself directly only on limited occasions. Such phases as planning and organizing the details of work and deciding the methods to produce a given result are completely in the hands of the employee. The employee is expected to carry out not only all the ordinary affairs of the position, but to meet unusual situations and provide proper interpretations without advise or instruction other than that afforded by the general plans, regulations and purposes which are applicable to all work in the unit, section, division or department.

Active control from a higher-level is manifested only where matters of broad policy and coordination, long range planning, expenditure of funds and related items are involved. And even in such matters, the employee generally participates by making recommendations or developing ideas in conference with superiors. Actual contact between the employee and superior, personally or through memoranda, is, however, rather limited in terms of frequency and matters covered, when compared to the whole scope of the employee's duties and responsibilities.

Broad Policy Guidance & Direction: This phrase is characterized by a heavy personal responsibility on the part of the employee and broad authority for accomplishing the mission, as well as for making policy and developing and delegating plans for carrying out work programs. There is practically complete freedom and relative infrequency of reference to others for advice and instructions, even when unusual problems are involved. These are the highest level positions, normally reporting to a Board, Commission, and/or Chief Executive Officer.

When indicating the source of the supervision provided to a position or classification, and where it is more useful to utilize a generic approach to the classification rather than showing a specific title of a supervisor; the use of supervisory levels is appropriate.

When describing Supervision Exercised, the following format should be used to indicate the type of supervision, control or responsibility exercised over other personnel. Utilizing the levels of supervision defined above; "Provides (level, i.e. close, general, etc.) supervision to (list the titles or occupational groups for the positions supervised, i.e., Clerical, Secretarial, Technical, Professional, Operators, etc.). If no supervisory responsibility is present in the position or classification, then "None" should be indicated, or left blank.

Essential Functions are descriptive, but are not intended to be either all-inclusive or restrictive. It is intended that these statements represent management's choice of essential functions which would or could be tested under the ADA. It is neither necessary nor advisable to attempt to write a comprehensive job description. Details of the job are reserved for performance plans. A sufficient number of examples to present a clear picture of the work and nature of the work is generally 8-10 statements. Each statement should answer the question, "What is performed", "How is the task performed", and "Why is performed". Sentences listing examples of duties usually start with a verb of the present tense, such as: "Performs...", "Inspects...", "Researches...", "Interprets...", "Evaluates...", "Reviews...", "Delegates...", "Monitors...", "Coordinates...", "Investigates...", etc. Closely related duties should be grouped into a single paragraph and separated by a semi-colon. Generally, the statements are in order of importance.

The Minimum Qualifications portion of the description describes the lowest level of education, experience, knowledge, skills, and abilities required for entry into the position. In competitive recruitments it is likely that the successful applicant for a vacancy would exceed the minimum qualifications. There are three parts to the statement: Education, Experience, and Equivalence. The following are examples of each.
The Knowledge, Skills & Abilities portion can be used as a guide for the development of recruitment procedures and selection devices, including written or oral examinations. They are listed in one paragraph for each element, with knowledge first, skills second, and abilities last. Explanation and definitions are as follows:

- Some Knowledge: Entry level knowledge. Enough familiarity with the field to know elementary terminology and principles and their application to simple problems.

- Working Knowledge: Enough knowledge in the field to understand everyday terminology and principles and their application to "journey" level problems; a level of knowledge often expected to be obtained through major course work in post-high school training, on-the-job training and experience.

- Considerable Knowledge: Enough advanced knowledge in the field to understand terminology and principles and their application to problems beyond the "journey level" or everyday level. This level is expected to be obtained through experience at the working level that has provided for the increasingly difficult and independent application of principles, methods, and procedures.

- Thorough Knowledge: Nearly completed knowledge in the field acquired through considerable experience in the application of principles, techniques, theory, and methods in solving unusual and difficult problems and in developing operational policies.

- Extensive Knowledge: The most advanced degree of knowledge likely to be found, implying professional mastery and understanding in the field. This level would be used sparingly and only for exacting technical and professional level positions.

- Skills: Skill requirements should be specified when the skill is in a measurable area or field. Skills imply performance levels needing no further training to qualify for the job and perform essential job functions.

- Abilities: This requirement should be phrased, "Ability to ......." Certain abilities appear in almost all class specifications and descriptions.

Special Qualifications is used to identify required or essential licenses, certifications, registrations, professional designations or other requirements which may be established by law, practice, or bona fide occupational qualification (BFOQ). Membership in associations or professional organizations and societies may be included on the description if membership is a requirement to be hired or retain the position.

Work Environment & Physical Demands describes typical surroundings, including hazards associated with various tasks. The physical and mental demands identify both the degree and types of effort normally exerted in performing job tasks. Also noted would be unusual demands for work positions, such as excessive standing, sitting, crawling, bending, lifting, etc. Supplemental material with comprehensive analysis should be contained in the job files which document the job status under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

APPROVAL OF AGENDA

A. Personnel Policy Changes

Mr. Mortillaro started on page 11 of the packet noting that the section was not removed from the document, however it was replaced in Section 1.4 of the personnel policies so that it would be kept in line with Rule 1 – General Provisions and Purpose of the polices; none of the language was changed. He then went on to item C, on page 12 stating it was the management rights clause which we initially had in the policies, however now that the CBA had been done, a more comprehensive management rights clause was put in place which was also moved over to the Personnel Policies.

Mr. Mortillaro noted that the blue text in the document was Mr. Peter Dwyer’s addition of language within the policies.

[Mr. Bulthuis entered the room.]

Mr. Mortillaro continued on page 14 of the Personnel Policies in Section 1.5 – Coverage, noting that the Collective Bargaining Agreement did not cover everything that was in the Personnel Policies and Procedures, so a clause was set in place that if the policies were not in the CBA or did not conflict with the CBA and were in the Personnel Policies and Procedures, then the Personnel Policies superseded and vice versa. He also noted that for those employees that are Union represented it makes it a bit more complex because they now have two sets of rules to follow. Mr. Mortillaro went on to mention that the District would now have to revise the New Employee Orientation to ensure that both sets of documents are covered with the new employees. He continued to page 15 of the packet in Section 1.7 – Equal Employment Opportunity and Sexual Harassment-Discrimination and Harassment Prohibited, A(1-6) stating that the section was removed and then added back in. Therefore, the redline is just indicating that the section as a whole was added back in the document. Mr. Mortillaro moved on to page 16 and 17 of the document, indicating that Section 1.7-B through G was a new addition to the policies. He noted that it went into further detail in regards to sexual harassment and workplace harassment, as well as the supervisor and management role, reporting a complaint and retaliation.

Mr. Mortillaro noted that within the last year the District has received sexual harassment complaints from employees within the organization who have complained before about sexual misconduct. He stated that it was determined that the sexual harassment training that was given before was something that needed improvement because it was not working. Therefore, a consultant by the name of Rita Montoya was brought in to conduct intensive training with District Employees. Ms. Montoya conducted 2-hour trainings for Operation and Administration Employees, in which the District also generated a complaint form since this had not been done in the past; every employee was provided with a complaint form if in case they needed to report something that was occurring.

Mr. Bulthuis confirmed with Mr. Mortillaro that everything from Section 1.7-B through G was new.

Mr. Mortillaro responded, stating that it was all new other than the redline under Section 1.7-G, which was put back into the document under Section 1.7-A. He noted that Ms. Montoya assisted the District in drafting the policy because of her background in EEOC.

Mr. Shelton asked Mr. Mortillaro how often the sexual harassment training was held.

Mr. Mortillaro replied, stating it had been done twice since he had been with the organization. He noted that the last time the training was done, it was done by Mr. Michael Kelly through a training disc for operation employees only. However, this time he noted that he wanted to bring in an expert. Mr. Mortillaro also mentioned that the latest training sessions were very interactive and engaged question-answer sessions.

Mr. Cordova asked if there was a lot of questions during the sessions.

Mr. Mortillaro responded stating that there was at both sessions and that ideally he felt the need to conduct this type of training bi-annually.
Mr. Shelton noted that Los Alamos County also conducts this type of training every two years.

Mr. Mortillaro went on stating that drivers had to be brought in on Saturday’s to conduct any training because Monday through Friday they were out Driving. Therefore, quarterly Saturday meetings are held to accomplish this. However, this means everybody gets overtime, as well as the cost of the trainer coming on-site, which is very costly; this is why it is limited to quarterly.

Mr. Mortillaro asked Mr. Bulthuis if this is also how it was done through the City of Santa Fe – Santa Fe Trails.

Mr. Bulthuis replied that it worked exactly the same.

Mr. Mortillaro went on to ask if there was any further questions on the additions and deletions in Section 1.7, by which there was none. He went on to Section 1.8, noting that the change in Section C was a formatting change, but nothing was added or deleted; a formatting change was also made in Section F on page 20 of the document. Mr. Mortillaro went on to page 21 of the document, stating that the language did not change, however the formatting changed from numbers to letters. He also noted that he was trying to get all the formatting consistent throughout the document, therefore some of the changes were mostly formatting. Mr. Mortillaro continued to page 23 in Section 2.3, stating that the text “and Temporary Promotion” was added to the heading because it was difficult to find initially. He went on to page 24 in Section B-3, noting that the word “such” was deleted. Mr. Mortillaro then went on to page 33 of the document, noting that Section 3.10 – A was new language that had been added to the document clarifying promotions and pay rate increases.

Mr. Mortillaro asked if there was any questions regarding the addition and then proceeded to page 34 of the document noting that Section 3.11-B had only one minor formatting change; same thing with Section 3.12-B. He went on to page 37, stating that Section 3.15 Holiday Pay was moved to Section 4.7 of the document under B and C on page 39. Mr. Mortillaro went on to talk more specifically about Section 4.7, stating that the heading “Legal Holidays” was renamed to state “Holidays and Holiday Pay”. He noted that President’s Day and the Personal Holiday will only be observed through December 31, 2013, and as of January 1, 2014 Martin Luther King Day and Christmas Eve will be observed; these changes are in line with the Collective Bargaining Agreement so that all employees are on the same holiday schedule. This is the same amount of holidays that were given before.

Mr. Bulthuis referred back to Section 3.10-A, Administration of the Compensation Plan (1-3) and asked if the 10% increase tied the hands of Mr. Mortillaro in terms of salary increases.
Mr. Mortillaro stated that Section A-3 allows him to increase or decrease the base pay rate because of salary compaction; experience and qualifications; correction of salary inequities; or other valid reasons.

Mr. Bulthuis went on to reference page 24 in Section 2.3-B (Temporary Promotion), asking why there was a 5% minimum for a temporary salary increase, and the other is a 10% minimum for a regular promotion.

Mr. Mortillaro responded that the language in this section was similar to what was removed in Section 3.10 (Administration of Compensation Plan). He stated that what was in Section 3.10 should also be in Section 2.3-B so these items would be the same. He also noted that this correction would be made prior to presentation to the Board.

Mr. Mortillaro went on to page 40 in item I, stating that the language was added to ensure the employee once again knows that the Personal Holiday is eliminated as of 12/31/2013. He proceeded to page 41 in Section 4.9 (Annual Leave), noting that 25 years of service was added to the table, which is also included in the Collective Bargaining Agreement; he stated that he wanted to ensure the Annual Leave Accrual Schedule matched what was in the Collective Bargaining Agreement. Mr. Mortillaro moved on to page 42, item D, in which he removed the language stating, “In the event an employee terminates employment and has used more annual leave then has been accrued, that amount will be deducted from the employee’s final check”. He also noted that initially the District used to advance employee’s 80 hours of annual leave when they started employment with the District, in which most places do not allow that; no one should be using more annual leave than accrued. He went further stating that when revising the policies so that the District no longer had to advance leave, that statement was accidentally left in there; it is now being removed so that everything is consistent.

Mr. Cordova asked Mr. Mortillaro what Section 4.9-C meant.

Mr. Mortillaro responded that it was placed in there to have the ability to grant an employee advance leave in special circumstances. However, he stated that he never has granted advance leave nor does he intend to. He also noted that once he grants advance leave to one, he would have to do it for any other employees. He questioned whether or not the statement, “The Executive Director has the authority to grant advance leave in special circumstances”, should be removed. The Subcommittee agreed that the statement should in fact be removed.

Mr. Mortillaro moved on to Section 4.10-C under the Family Medical Leave Act and noted that the word “work” was added in front of weeks to ensure the employee was clear that employees under FMLA are entitled to a total of 12 work weeks of unpaid FMLA leave during a rolling 12-month period. He continued to page 43, Section 4.12-C, stating it was a formatting change. Mr. Mortillaro proceeded to page 44, Section 4.12-F, stating that the whole section deals with Sick Leave, and that he wanted to clarify that, “If an employee has exhausted earned sick leave, and requests additional time off the Executive Director may either elect to reduce balances on any other leave such as vacation or compensatory leave or proceed with appropriate action under these rules in the event the employee fails to report for work as required”. He noted that this statement gives the District the flexibility to deal with these types of situations.

Mr. Mortillaro continued further stating that although most people will elect to use their annual leave instead of Leave without Pay, there are some that would rather be on LWOP vs. Annual Leave.

Ms. Aragon stated that an employee solely on LWOP requires Finance to have to calculate and prorate the insurance premiums by the days worked and the 80/20 percentage by the employer and employee; when an employee takes LWOP the employee premium is higher. It is a lot of work just to calculate for one employee.

Mr. Mortillaro moved on to LWOP stating that the employee can no longer pay the 80 percent of employee premiums due to the Anti-Donation Clause; if the employee is not providing value to the organization, the employer cannot benefit the employee. Therefore, the employee now has to pay the full premium, which would include the 80 percent the employer would have been making on their behalf.

Mr. Cordova responded stating that he sees Mr. Mortillaro’s point especially because COBRA is then made available during that time.

Mr. Mortillaro noted that it would be discussed further under Section 4.13 Leave Without Pay. He moved on to page 45 stating that the language in Section J, states the “value listed in Section O below” was changed to “the value listed in Section N below” because there was no Section O.

Mr. Bulthuis went to discuss Section 4.12-F further stating that he did not want the employee to misinterpret this segment. For example if an employee did not have any sick leave, but took a sick day, and then tried to come back and use annual leave or any other leave that was not preapproved.

Mr. Mortillaro acknowledged where he was coming from, and stated that this provision allowed flexibility to either approve or not approve the request. Therefore, if the employee did in fact do this, the Executive Director could choose to not approve and place the employee on LWOP for that day. He also noted that it was one of those things where he would look into the employee’s use of leave pattern.

Mr. Cordova continued stating that this was something that could also be described as Misuse of Sick Leave.

Mr. Mortillaro went on to Section 4.13 Leave Without Pay, allows the District to grant an Employee LWOP even if it is not medically related. It’s the District’s sole discretion to grant it, but only after the employee has exhausted all accrued leave. The request must be in writing, and will only be granted at the best interest of the District and the granting will not disrupt District operations. He noted that the sentence used to say LWOP could be granted by a supervisor for up to ten (10) working days. Yet, Section B states it may only be granted if the Executive Director can assure a position of like status and pay, which was somewhat contradictory to the previous statement relating to supervisory approval. Therefore the supervisor’s ability to grant LWOP has been removed.

Mr. Bulthuis noted that he did think the Executive Director should be the only one who has the authority to grant LWOP.

Mr. Mortillaro noted that this was discussed at the last staff meeting on how Section 4.13 could be clarified further.

Mr. Shelton questioned the Military Caregiver Leave entitlement being a half a year by law.

Mr. Mortillaro confirmed that it was.

Mr. Shelton expressed that he was not aware of this.

Mr. Mortillaro stated that the District was not either, however now the policies are all being revised to ensure they are compliant with the law.

Mr. Mortillaro went on further to page 46 of the document to Section 4.13-E clarifying that Employees are not able to accrue sick or annual leave while on leave without pay, nor are they eligible for paid holidays. He continued to Section F, stating that “Employees who desire to continue Insurance Coverage while on LWOP for 30 calendar days or more” has been removed. Therefore the minute the employee goes on LWOP they must pay the full or proportional share of the premium.
Mr. Bulthuis questioned whether or not PERA deductions, were treated the same way during LWOP.

Ms. Aragon responded, stating that it was not because the employee is not making any money at that point, therefore nothing is being deducted because we are only making a contribution based on the wages earned.

Mr. Bulthuis confirmed that it would only be term of service that would affect PERA.

Ms. Aragon responded that this was correct.

Mr. Cordova noted that it was still more beneficial to employees to pay the full premium, then to pay on a COBRA plan.

Mr. Mortillaro continued to page 47 in Section 4.19-B, stating that it was changed to be in line with the Collective Bargaining Agreement. He noted that there were some changes in the CBA that he was not outlining in the Personnel Policies and Procedures because they are disadvantageous to the non-represented employees. He also stated that he brought in changes such as holidays and leave accruals etc. to ensure all employees were on a par.

Mr. Mortillaro proceeded to page 62 of the document, in Section 5.4 stating that he wanted to clarify that employees are not to leave the work site during relief period breaks. He also noted that family members have been brought in on occasion during breaks, but rather than not allowing employees to do so, he stated that they must get advanced authorization from supervisors.

Mr. Mortillaro went on to page 70, indicating that Rule-10 Workplace Violence was a completely new addition to the policy. He noted that he and Mr. Dwyer made various changes and additions, which is seen in the redline. Mr. Mortillaro continued further stating that this addition ensures no weapons are allowed on District property, and if suspected it gives us the right to search an employee’s vehicle and so on. He continued stating that it also deals with those employees who have a concealed weapons permit, noting that because the District’s policies do not allow weapons on the property, employees are not allowed to bring their concealed weapon onto District property.

Mr. Shelton suggested that the Rule 10-Workplace Violence be moved to Section 1.8 since the two sections are similar or to have the same reporting form for the two; the Subcommittee agreed to move the Rule 10 to Section 1.8.
Mr. Bulthuis noted that he strongly supported keeping weapons off of the property.
Ms. Aragon questioned whether or not all knives were restricted or if a certain length would be allowed, other than those used for food preparation and service.

Mr. Mortillaro responded suggesting that the District use TSA Guidelines as far as this was concerned; the Subcommittee agreed.

Mr. Mortillaro moved on to page 75 to the definition of Drug and Alcohol, informing the employee to refer to the District’s Drug and Alcohol Policy.

Mr. Bulthuis referred back to Mr. Shelton’s question in regards to the reporting forms for harassment and workplace violence.

Mr. Mortillaro noted that a form was not required for Workplace Violence because it is immediate or has just occurred. He noted that most of the time, employees don’t usually have the time to fill out a form because of this.

Mr. Bulthuis and Mr. Shelton suggested to have an incident report or workplace violence reporting form.

Mr. Mortillaro stated that he would add language to the policies indicating that a form would be required if reported before, as a result of initially reporting, or after.

B. Minutes from April 24, 2013

Mr. Mortillaro then asked the members to review the minutes from the April 24th Subcommittee meeting, noting that they had slightly changed from what was initially sent out.

Mr. Shelton noted that he was not at the April 24th meeting, and that Mr. Geoff Rodgers covered the meeting telephonically. Mr. Mortillaro directed Ms. Lucero to remove Mr. Shelton from the minutes for that meeting; Ms. Lucero agreed.

Mr. Mortillaro stated that if all agreed to the amended minutes, they would be included in the June Board Packet; all agreed.

ADJOURN – Next Finance Subcommittee meeting will be held on June 28, 2013 at 9:00 AM.
